

ANSWER

The given maps illustrate how the museum and its nearby area changed over the period of five decades. Overall, it is clear that the area undergone various changes along with expansion of area of the museum throughout the given time span.

Looking at the surroundings of the museum in 2007, the removal of the trees can be seen than that of 1957 from the roadside and greenery around the museum also reduced as the area of museum was extended. The driveway leading up to the museum had also been removed and car park has been built by the roadside after fifty years.

Moving to the museum building, in 1957, the entrance of the museum was located in the middle of the building which shifted to the left side of the building in 2007 where a new shop had been built from there, the visitors could enter into a new reception room. The cafe had been constructed at the place of museum storage room and national history exhibition room was turned into local history room. Two new rooms were added namely special exhibitions and education centre in 2007.
